

Act I
Page 1.

Reading a script.

(read silently)

In order for this work of art to exist in space and time
(and not just on paper)-
you must first of all find this script.

Next, you must notice the other two scripts laying on the other two chairs.

If you are ready to start the work, you must seat yourself
quietly in the chair, and wait patiently
until the other two chairs are also occupied.

Sitting in the chair quietly indicates you are ready to start.

If there is no one around to sit in the other two chairs- now is the time for you to run around to try and find people to undertake this journey with you.

Once you return- everyone should read this first page silently-
and once it is read-
and once each of the three have made the intention to partake in this event together-

(whether there are other spectators or not)

all three of you- silently in agreement- through eye contact-
and nods-
may agree to turn the page and begin.
